

Through the participation of the Olympiad, we have a more awareness of the current status of nuclear science and technology and related industries than before, and have an independent thinking of it.

Also, we learned new ways of thinking, including surveying, analyzing, etc.

Moreover, I have learned how to work in a team as a leader.

In your opinion, what should nuclear professionals do to communicate better with the public?

Nuclear professionals should change their passive attitudes into active, proactively speak out to around and society not just for crisis public relations.

Every professional in the nuclear field is a stakeholder.

We should do all we can to help it.

What are your future career ambitions and where do you see yourself in 10 years' time?

I would like to begin a PhD in the near future. Also, I want to have a positive impact on academic research in the future. I would like to work in a scientific research in a university or a scientific institution. It would be my honor if I could make a contribution to the nuclear industry.
